

Dreaming Hope: Accelerated Experiential Dynamic Psychotherapy
And the Natural Creativity of the Sleeping Self
Friday, October 30 2015
9:00AM - 5:00PM

In this daylong seminar Dr. Miriam Marsolais, a Zurich-trained Jungian Analyst and Faculty member of the AEDP Institute, hopes to inspire and offer guidance for therapists wishing to access the exquisitely rich and subtle treasury of patients' dreams in service of transformation and healing.

Dr. Marsolais will summarize recent neuroscientific research on the role of sleep and dreams in processing intense emotional experience. Drawing upon her Jungian roots, she will show how AEDP's theoretical and clinical framework lays the groundwork for effective, transformative application of this research in trauma treatment. Using videotape of her work, she will demonstrate how AEDP taps into the deep wells of resilience of the sleeping mind and how dream experience can be accessed through AEDP to facilitate healing from complex, early relational trauma.

Dr. Marsolais' deep engagement with dream experience began when she recognized in her own dreams the seeds of emotional recovery from a near-fatal burn injury. Her consequent three decades of work with dreams and trauma treatment has led to her conviction that dreams are intimate expressions of our mind's natural creativity that, when processed in conjunction with AEDP, open new pathways to healing, to intimacy in relationships and to a life rich with meaning.

This daylong training will be useful for those who are experienced in AEDP as well as those who are attending for the first time.
